The New York lighting community got together yesterday for the seventh LEDucation Conference and LED lighting show. Our friends at the DLFNY (Designer's Lighting Forum of New York) - of which I'm a member) sponsor the show.

LED lighting manufacturers and New York based lighting companies exhibit their new LEDs and the lighting products they have to offer. And LED experts and lighting designers lecture about the various issues to consider when specifying LED luminaires. As you know - it's complicated!

Thankfully this conference is a great resource for designers and specifiers. One of our customers, Brooke Silber of Jan & Brooke, Luminae, gave a presentation about using LEDs for interior and exterior projects. Check out their lecture schedule.
